Joseph B. Fay Recognized by Bechtel for Supply Chain Excellence

Company Honored for its outstanding contribution and commitment

December 23, 2020 - Pittsburgh, PA — Joseph B. Fay was recognized today the second year in a row for its supply chain excellence when supporting Bechtel's Oil Gas and Chemicals projects.

The Bechtel Supply Chain Recognition Award celebrates subcontractors and suppliers who supported Bechtel's work on projects around the world during 2020.

"The performance of our supply chain partners is critical for us to deliver successful projects for our customers around the world," said Gerry O'Connor, Bechtel's OG&C Manager of Procurement and Contracts. "We depend on our suppliers and subcontractors to bring expert knowledge, innovation and integrity to our projects and customers. Those recognized today have shown commitment to safely and responsibly deliver quality goods and services on time and within budget."

"It has been an honor to be one of several contractors working to transform a legacy industrial site into the $6 Billion Pennsylvania chemicals plant," stated James P. McNelis, President of Fay. "We are grateful to be recognized on a global level for the work of all of our employees on site."

Fay has been performing marine and heavy civil construction for Bechtel for five years at the new Shell cracker plant in Monaca, PA. Fay has been involved in both the Early Works and the Main Works Packages, providing multiple sub-tier opportunities with short turnaround times (H-Piles, Hydro Blasting, Grouting, Boring, Sheet Piles etc.). Fay has truly been a partner to the project and has made a significant impact on the overall progression of the job-site.

Companies were evaluated on multiple factors. They include; overall performance; the ability to deliver quality services/goods on time; the ability to work collaboratively to meet milestones; and meeting or exceeding project expectations in aspects of safety, delivery, construction performance, technical expertise, and environmental compliance. Nominations were reviewed and approved by Bechtel Supply Chain and Project Managers and our senior leadership.
